

C/R teaching de-escalation skills

COLLEGE OF THE REDWOODS
EUREKA – College of the Redwoods is offering free online trainings on awareness, de-escalation, and assertiveness skills for workers interacting with the public. Trainings will be offered through CR’s Workforce and Community Education Program from the middle of July through Aug. 1 and are being paid for by CR’s Foundation.

“We were approached by Susan Seaman, the mayor of Eureka, about the need for de-escalation trainings and this was echoed by community leaders on the COVID Economic Resilience Committee (CERC) weekly calls, being hosted by the North Coast Small Business Development Center (SBDC) and the Redwood Region Economic Development Commission (RREDC),” said Marty Coelho, executive director of College Advancement and the CR Foundation.

“A large number of our businesses and organizations have a plan for all sorts of situations but we don’t plan to routinely deal with angry customers when things can get out of control. This collaborative effort between the CR’s Foundation and Community Education will provide clients with strategies for resolving those situations. It’s also another example of how CR is responding to the needs of our community,” said Keith Flamer, president of College of the Redwoods.

Susan Seaman, City of Eureka’s mayor said, “With growing economic stress, political divisiveness, and so few answers about what to expect in the near future, people’s nerves are frayed. We have heard time and again about customers taking it out on service providers. I’m so grateful that College of the Redwoods Foundation recognized that de-escalation and assertiveness training can be a valuable tool for employees to help them navigate this uncertain road.”

CR’s free Awareness, De-Escalation & Assertiveness online trainings will be offered to the following industry groups: retail workers on Saturday, July 18 from 8:30 to 11 a.m. hospitality workers on Saturday, July 18 from 2 to 4:30 p.m.; grocery workers on Thursday, July 23 from 8:30 to 11 a.m.; city/county frontline workers on Thursday, July 23 from 2 to 4:30 p.m.; and child care workers on Saturday, Aug. 1 from 8:30 to 11 a.m.

“We can train up to 25 workers for each industry group. Normally the class would cost at least $35 per person, but the CR Foundation will cover the $4,375 in fees for these classes,” said Coelho.

CR’s Workforce and Community Education Program partners with the community to contribute to the economic vitality of the region, provides workforce training to support local employers’ needs, and provides lifelong learning opportunities within the Redwoods Community College District.

“The Workforce and Community Education Program is a valuable local asset. CR offers high quality trainings that can be quickly responsive to community needs,” said Danny Kelley, Foundation board member and CR Board of Trustee’s Vice-President.

To register for CR’s free online trainings for Awareness, De-Escalation & Assertiveness, call CR’s Workforce and Community Education Program at (707) 476-4500 or visit redwoods.edu/community/online. Space is limited.

McK’ville giving fish the right of way

Jack Durham
MAD RIVER UNION
MCKINLEYVILLE – If funding is available, McKinleyville could construct habitat for juvenile salmon along the banks of the Mad River as early as the summer of 2021. The project would include a new trail, a parking lot, two picnic tables, wildlife viewing areas and a place to launch small boats into the river.

The McKinleyville Community Services District Board of Directors was scheduled July 1 to adopt an initial study of the project and approve a mitigated negative declaration for what’s being called the Mad River Floodplain and Public Access Enhancement Project.

At the request of Director Shel Barsanti, the board voted 4-1, with MCSD Board President Mary Burke abstaining, to postpone the matter until its Aug. 3 meeting. Barsanti said she wants more information about how the district will pay for the $1.6 million project.

Part of the project involves the conversion of 4.3 acres of wastewater percolation ponds into coho salmon habitat. The ponds were used by the district to dispose of treated wastewater, which is now used for irrigation.

The ponds are located on land owned by the district on the McKinleyville side of the river roughly across from the Mad River boat ramp.

All but the eastern levees will be removed from the ponds, which will be connected to the Mad River, allowing juvenile fish to swim into the ponds and seek refuge. Native trees and plants will provide shade, coverage, protection and food for the fish.

At the west end of School Road, a half-acre parking lot would be constructed, with a paved trail, about four to eight feet wide, extending down to an overlook. Existing trails in the area will also be graveled and improved.

Some of the improvements to existing trails could take place this year, according to MCSD Manager Patrick Kaspari.

An area down the hill from School Road along the banks of the Mad River would be altered to allow for small boats, such as kayaks, to be launched into the river. This would not be a boat ramp.

After the initial study and mitigated negative declaration are approved, the district would pursue grant funding to help pay for most of the project.

At the July 1 meeting, the MCSD board received three letters from Verwer Avenue residents opposing the project. Verwer is the private road to the north of the west end of School Road.

The residents complained that cars often use Verwer to turn around, causing damage to the roadway. The park, they said, would result in more traffic.

Towers | 'There is no project'

✦ FROM PAGE 1 want towers," Kaspari wrote. "The two District sites that they have expressed interest in are the Cochran Tank site and the District office site. They have not provided any information on tower height or design, whether it is 4G or 5G, lease price or restrictions, or any other additional information. We still do not know if the cell providers themselves are actually interested in either of these sites either."

At the July 1 meeting, Kaspari told the board "There is no project."

If there was a proposal, it would need to be approved by the board.

In their protest letters to the district, opponents of new cell towers stated that they were concerned about the safety of the towers, the aesthetics and the how they might affect property values.

"I'm angry that those in power can impact my family's health and ruin my property value," wrote Susanne Westbrook. "No one's going to want to buy my house with a cell tower in close proximity. Would you? And what about my young children's exposure. Would you place your children at risk?"

The district received one letter of support for a new cell tower from Michael Glass, who said a new tower could provide revenue for the MCSD and boost the strength of the cell signal in the area.

"I feel a new tower with appropriate redundancy would be a valuable asset to our local McKinleyville community," Glass wrote.

Celebrate summer with reading, crafts and activities

HUMBOLDT COUNTY LIBRARY
HUMBOLDT – Celebrate summer with your library! Children and their families are invited to sign up for summer reading and pick up free craft activity kits during curbside pickup hours at all Humboldt County Library locations throughout the county.

Participants can sign up for summer reading on the library's website, humboldt.gov/1502/Summer-Reading-Club, or by requesting a reading log during curbside pickup at any library.

Activity kits are available on a first-come, first-served basis, while supplies last. The first activity kit, a Pretend Picnic, includes a paper basket to assemble and decorate and supplies to make paper food items.

The library is also offering a bag of basic supplies – crayons, scissors, tape, and a glue stick – for those who do not have those items readily available.

Patrons may request one activity kit per child and one basic supply bag per household by going to any library branch during curbside pickup hours and calling that library to ask for the kits. As when picking up library materials, please remain in your vehicle or stay at least six feet away from the entrance while waiting.

If you do not have a cell phone, knock at the library door, and then move back at least six feet to allow library staff to answer the door. The activity kits will be brought outside, where you can get them after library staff return inside.

Additional activity kits on a variety of themes will be offered every week or so through early August. Check the library website and social media accounts for ongoing updates on activity kit distribution and other library services.

Participants are encouraged to use #HumCoLibrary and #CASummer-Reading to share photos of finished craft activities on social media.

A summer reading log is included in each activity kit – participants are invited to talk, sing, read, write, and play this summer and share their fun by turning in a paper reading log in any library book drop or by filling out the form on the library website.

While assembling kits, library staff members are practicing social distancing and using PPE in accordance with public health recommendations. None of the activity kit supplies need to be returned to the library.

The supplies are a gift to the community, thanks to summer program sponsors: First 5 Humboldt; the Friends of the Redwood Libraries; Humboldt Sponsors; Humboldt Area Foundation; St. Joseph Health System, Humboldt County; McLean Foundation; and the Patricia D. & William B. Smullin Foundation.

Adorable Zuko’s admirable core values

Week 16 of shelter in place. I totally neglected to mention the Four of July last week.

It seems like we are missing so many of the markers that define the year – Graduations, the Kinetic Sculpture Race, the start of Crabs Baseball – that it is hard to keep track of where we are. July already?

I would have reminded you to make sure your dogs and cats were kept inside and that they have ID tags in case they get out; good advice even when it is not a scary holiday. There were a lot of dogs at the shelter over the weekend. Hopefully their people all came for them when the weekend was over.

At this writing there are only five adoptable dogs at the shelter and they’ve all been mentioned here already. There are some new ones waiting in the wings. We are just getting to know them and they’ll get their 200 words of fame here soon!

This cute boy Zuko was an adoptable dog at the shelter (which means he had passed his temperament testing) when he had the opportunity to be fostered with a Redwood Pals volunteer.

A foster can really be a lifechanger for a young dog that could use some focused training, especially for one of the working dog breeds. Zuko is a six-month-old Malinois or Belgian Shepherd mix.

He has proven himself to be a fantastic student and already knows Sit, Shake, and Gentle (for taking treats) and is working on Stay and Down.

He walks well on the leash and is very attentive to his person. He loves the big female shepherd that he lives with and is doing well with meeting other dogs. A couple of his special characteristics are his ability to pick blueberries and his love of riding in the car!

Zuko does fine with being kenneled at night and has learned that outside is where he should go potty. His foster describes him as extremely loving, loyal and smart.

She thinks he would do best in a home with someone who would continue his training and give him a job. She says he deserves to have a person that adores him in the way he adores everyone around him and we agree!

Zuko is neutered, micro-chipped and current on his vaccinations. If you would like to meet this handsome fellow, please contact Redwood Pals Rescue at redwoodpalsrescue@gmail.com or leave a voicemail at (707) 633-8842.

Contrast and compare the French and U.S. healthcare experience

It's a slow Bayside news week, so I thought I'd share a personal tale from some Bayside residents.

My husband Tom and I went out for our first restaurant meal together since early March. El Chipotle, in the Sunny Brae Center, is open every day for dine-in lunch and dinner. It has a sheltered outside patio, a huge indoor space, all of the recommended COVID precautions, and it felt very safe. What a small special pleasure in this strange time.

That got me thinking about things that we take for granted. This time last year, Tom and I were headed to southern France for a vacation with family. Three days in, on a very quiet Sunday morning in a small town along the Canal du Midi, Tom began feeling unwell... short of breath, pain in his upper arm. I was able to call France's version of 911 and a short time later, an ambulance arrived, with a doctor (!), nurse technician and driver, and a second back-up vehicle.

Tests performed on site told them that he should go straight to hospital, and we were given the option of the closest, smaller hospital, or larger facility about 30 minutes away. We chose the latter.

Long story short, Tom was in various health care facilities for the next six weeks. He spent the first nine days at a hospital in Carcassonne. They did the angiography and all of the necessary tests so he could be assessed for surgery. He felt perfectly well during all of this time (in the U.S., I'm sure he would have been discharged), but the French doctors wanted him supervised.

We were sent by medical taxi to consult with the cardiac surgeon and then transferred to a huge university hospital with a cardiac specialty unit in Toulouse, where he spent two weeks. He had quadruple bypass surgery, was five days in Cardiac ICU and then a regular cardiac unit. He was then transferred by medical taxi to a rehab facility where he spent another two weeks (they wanted him to stay a full month, but we needed to get home).

Throughout all this I stayed nearby and visited every day (by bus and metro) and, toward the end, on the weekends, we went out for excursions in the beautiful city of Toulouse. By this time, Tom was easily able to walk many miles a day, navigate stairs, and so on.

So what was so unusual about all this? Almost everything.

First, continuity of care. When the emergency occurred I contacted our medical provider and insurances at home. But I couldn't get any information. No one could tell me what would happen if I transferred Tom back to the U.S. for care. Where should we go? How would the surgery get authorized and scheduled? When could it be done? What would it cost?

That lack of clarity led us to stay in France where all of this was absolutely seamless. The French doctors themselves urged us to stay as they didn't trust this aspect of the U.S. system.

Second, the style of care. I was immediately struck by the difference in how medical staff interacted with patients. There was a lot less time spent looking at computer screens and entering information. Patients were encouraged to move around as much as they were able. It was common to see patients toting IV poles down in the cafeteria with family.

When I later saw Tom's medical records, I was astonished at how concise and clear they were. When I once requested my own records from a two-hour $3,500 ER visit here at home, I received about 30 pages of gobbledy-gook.

Third, the cost. I was able to put the cost of the first nine days stay on a credit card while I sorted out the details. Would your credit card cover that in the U.S.?

We have long kept an emergency travel medical policy, renewed annually, which covers emergency medical evacuation (which could have been used in this case) or treatment. (Frequent travelers out there, I strongly recommend such policies which are incredibly cost-effective and the staff at ours was amazing in working with us to cover costs and get us home safely.)

When all was said and done, the total cost of all of Tom's care, from ambulance to diagnosis to transfer to major surgery to rehab (six weeks in all) was less than $50,000.

The care was state-of-the-art. There was no process of authorizing and tracking every procedure, lab test and medication. If the doctors felt it necessary, it happened, and it was included in a flat daily rate for the level of care. The fee schedule for the first hospital was one half-page long.

When we were ready to go home, our insurance covered first class flights to San Francisco. The cost for those two tickets for a half-day plane ride was over $32,000!

It really makes me wonder about priorities... and to realize how lucky we were that Tom's emergency happened in France... even if we did miss out on our vacation.

Aligning to current law, DA knocks old felony cannabis cases down to misdemeanors

HUMBOLDT COUNTY DISTRICT ATTORNEY

HUMBOLDT – In keeping with the letter and spirit of a 2018 California State Assembly Bill (AB 1793) which charged prosecutors with addressing past cannabis-related convictions to align them with current laws, the Humboldt County District Attorney has identified 801 convictions dating back to 1982 and agreed to their re-designation from felonies to misdemeanors.

AB 1793 addressed cannabis-related violations of the Health and Safety Code sections covering possession (section 11357), cultivation (section 11358), possession for sale (section 11359) and transportation (section 11360).

AB 1793 required that the California Department of Justice provide prosecutors' offices throughout the state with lists of their relevant cases.

When the list provided to Humboldt County included only 35 cases, District Attorney Maggie Fleming directed her staff to conduct their own search.

Historically in Humboldt County, some people charged with Health and Safety Code sections 11357-11360 requested and were granted the opportunity to plead guilty to Health and Safety Code 11366.5 (managing a location for unlawful use or storage of a controlled substance), because that conviction could be reduced to a misdemeanor upon successful completion of probation.

Therefore, the District Attorney's Office also included violations of that code section in its search.

Humboldt County's search, which dated back as far as possible given available computer records, yielded about 3,500 violations across more than 800 separate cases. While some violations of Health and Safety Code 11366.5 were not eligible for re-designation because they involved methamphetamine or heroin, all violations of 11366.5 involving cannabis and all convictions for violations listed in AB 1793 were reduced from felonies to misdemeanors.

People seeking information on whether their criminal records were affected by Humboldt County's response to AB 1793 should contact their legal counsel or Humboldt County Public Defender's Office at (707) 445-7634.

Any remaining convictions eligible for reduction under AB 1793 identified will receive prompt attention from the District Attorney's Office.

Mingling | Dodging droplets

The county has proceeded with reopening a variety of businesses and activities. The newest sector cleared for opening pending county certifications is movie theaters. But Frankovich suggested she's prepared to scale back business activity if coronavirus spread picks up.

"I want to be able to keep businesses open but frankly, we're going to have to walk things back if it doesn't change," she said, emphasizing that masking is "absolutely essential" to protect each other from what's believed to be the virus' main means of transmission – exhaled droplets.

"(Masking) is not meant to protect you specifically but if everyone is wearing them, it will protect you," said Frankovich. "I can't emphasize enough that this is our time of personal responsibility – either we accept that this virus is a problem and has potential to make a lot of us very sick or we ignore it at our own peril."

Answering a submitted media question on the impact of air travel, Frankovich said it's a concern but "focusing on flying specifically is problematic" because "the vast majority of people travelling in and out of our county are doing so by vehicles."

She added that the "drivers of travel-acquired infections in our community have been our own residents, leaving and coming back to the area."

That is of particular concern in the context of the summer season and the July 4 holiday.

During a July 2 video presentation, Deputy County Health Officer Josh Ennis said that people will want to socialize during the holiday weekend but "more than ever, with increased disease circulation throughout the state, this is the time when we need to exercise more caution – this is really one of the most important times."

Ennis recommended a COVID-era version of partying. "The safest thing to do is try to develop your own little celebration that stays at home," he said. "That is the safest thing to do – the more you bring people together, the more opportunity you introduce for having disease circulate around."

Some county residents will travel, however, and Ennis urged avoidance of "the kinds of activities that place you at higher risk" along with prevention measures like hand washing, masking and distancing.

Humboldt's total case count has risen unevenly but steadily, at times trickling and sometimes lurching from one or two cases to several cases per day.

Three more cases were confirmed on June 30 and two more were logged on July 2, bringing the county's total to 138 cases. On July 3, six more cases were confirmed to bring the total to 144 cases.

There have been 16 hospitalizations and a coronavirus outbreak in a Eureka nursing home led to four deaths.

Trinidad robber flees with cash after assaulting clerks

HUMBOLDT COUNTY SHERIFF'S OFFICE

TRINIDAD – On Wednesday, July 1 at about 10 p.m., Humboldt County Sheriff's deputies were dispatched to a business on the 300 block of Main Street in Trinidad for the report of an armed robbery that had just occurred.

Upon further investigation, deputies learned that an unknown male suspect entered the business, pointed a handgun at two employees and demanded cash from the store registers.

The suspect then physically assaulted the employees, prior to taking a large amount of cash and fleeing the business. The suspect was last seen running westbound from the business.

A newer model white Chevy truck, possibly associated with the suspect, was later seen fleeing the area southbound on U.S. Highway 101 at a high rate of speed.

The suspect is described as a white male adult, approximately 6 feet tall, wearing a gray long-sleeved shirt with dark jeans, a ski mask and gloves.

Anyone with information about this case is encouraged to call the Humboldt County Sheriff's Office at (707) 445-7251 or the Sheriff's Office Crime Tip line at (707) 268-2539.

Willow Creeker shoots self in face

HUMBOLDT COUNTY SHERIFF'S OFFICE

WILLOW CREEK – On Wednesday, July 1 at about 12:31 a.m., Humboldt County Sheriff's deputies were dispatched to a local hospital for the report of a gunshot victim that had just arrived.

Deputies responded to the hospital and learned that the 50-year-old male victim was reportedly retrieving his firearm for cleaning at a property in the Willow Creek area when the firearm fell and accidentally discharged.

The victim sustained a gunshot wound to the face. The victim was later transported to an out of area hospital for further treatment.

This incident is under investigation.

Anyone with information about this case is encouraged to call the Humboldt County Sheriff's Office at (707) 445-7251 or the Sheriff's Office Crime Tip line at (707) 268-2539.

JustArts group holding Zoom conversations on racial equity

EQUITY ARCATA

ARCATA – equity arcata's JustArts working group is holding a virtual space for local artists to discuss the role they play in creating a more racially equitable community.

JustArts was created to engage artists and artisans in community discussions on racial equity and social justice through art, and aims to create more safe and brave spaces for local artists to express themselves through various art forms, in addition to raising the voices of BIPOC artists and hosting community workshops surrounding racial equity.

As the local arts community moves forward in creating new ways of being, doing and making, JustArts encourages more local artists to join the conversation on how art can help create a more racially equitable and just world.

JustArts' next discussion will take place on Wednesday, July 8 from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. on Zoom, and all local artists are invited to attend. A link to the Zoom meeting can be found at equityarcata.com.

Shooting | Public Safety meeting Monday

Investigators believe that as the man exited the business, Nelson approached the subject and shot him. A stolen firearm believed to be associated with the homicide was recovered at the scene.

Nelson was arrested and booked into the Humboldt County Correctional Facility on suspicion of murder, possession of stolen property (the handgun) and convicted felon in possession of a firearm. He was being held without bail pending arraignment.

The decedent's identity wasn't known at press time Monday.

Reaction from Blue Lake residents ranged from dismay over a violent crime taking place in the community to outrage at Nelson's arrest. On various online fora, Nelson was hailed as a friendly, helpful person and even a hero.

A GoFundMe page titled "Justice for a hero" held that Nelson had acted to "protect the store and his beloved community!"

Continued the page, "He is a hero in the eyes of the community, yet has been charged with ridiculous charges! His family is hurt and confused during this trying time."

On the Blue Lake Community News and Crime Watch (299) Facebook page, Jason Crews, chair of Blue Lake's Public Safety Commission, said the commission will meet Monday, July 13 at 6 p.m. in a Zoom meeting. Those wishing to may also attend at Skinner Store where the meeting will be projected.

Attendees are asked to wear a facial covering and practice physical distancing.

"We have been promoting neighborhood watch and would like to help facilitate the organizing," Crews said. "Neighborhood watch is going to be an important part of our new direction."

The average residential wastewater ratepayer's monthly charge is presently $49.62, jumping 10 percent to $54.99 next year, $60.49 the following year and ending up at $77.61 in 2024/2025.

Each year's increases will be reviewed by the council, and could be modified.

The sewer funding is boosted by $7 million in recent grants plus "significant" further grants to assist in upgrading the WWTP.

Several letters from the public which were read at the meeting staunchly opposed the rate increases.

Councilmember Brett Watson acknowledged that the increases were "horrible," but "needed very badly." The four-member council then unanimously approved the fee increases.

Never has Winston Churchill’s observation that America will always do the right thing – after it’s tried everything else – been more true. Last week, even our resolutely fact-averse national leadership caved to the reality that masking isn’t a constitutional issue, but one based on medical reality. Of course they did for electoral rather than logical reasons, but that’s another editorial.

❖ EDITORIAL

Still, even with mass hospitalizations and casualties, packed ICUs and medical caregivers again pleading for more facilities and supplies, there are unhinged holdouts who cling to masking as a fun-and-games culture war plaything. It’s a testament to the power of myth. The problem is somewhat self-correcting, since their risky behavior will take its initial toll on them. Alas, they’ll take a lot of innocent people with them, and these will be the low-paid frontline workers who staff essential businesses. The frontliners are wearing masks to protect total strangers, and taking on additional risk in order to keep society alive. Why would you further imperil their health and even lives? Just as inexcusable, though, are the non-ideologues who are just too lazy or inconsiderate to bother with an inconvenient or uncomfortable mask. We see them everyday in public places. To anyone who isn’t masking and is still reachable, please put one on in public. Otherwise your uncovered face advertises that you’re pretty much an ignorant, selfish and/or irresponsible person. Going unmasked isn’t even in your own interest, because the higher the infection rate, the longer it will be before we can reopen to some responsible degree. Don’t be a bad human. Elevate reality over ideology. Heed science. Wear a mask, for yourself and others.

OUTTA THE WAY! HERE COMES THE MASKLESS MAGA EXPRESS!

News item: Trump Administration’s botched coronavirus response offers weak leadership on even the simplest COVID-19 prevention measures.

Since we still had a free press as of Wednesday, they can say this

Constitutional cooties

I have the right not to die from second hand smoke and laws came into effect to regulate cigarette smoke to protect us non smokers. We also have the right not to die from the coronavirus and there are regulations to help keep us safe from contracting it. I work on keeping social distance and wearing a mask to keep others safe from my cooties (I can easily be one of the walking asymptomatic spreading the virus via my respiration or speech) so why is it such a constitutional disaster when others are asked to protect their fellow humans by doing the same? It is difficult to fully open up our economy when some refuse to be concerned for others and take precautions; yet, those very same people protest that their constitutional rights are being violated because the economy is not opening up to their satisfaction. How can it fully open up if we aren’t mutually protecting each other? I have rights and I don’t want people spitting on them so, please, take precautions and let that move us forward in keeping the virus and deaths down and keeping our businesses open and thriving once again. Interchange involved

In Garth Sundberg’s recent letter to the community, he omitted one major fact: Plans for the Rancheria involve building a new interchange along Highway 101 just south of Trinidad. This proposed freeway interchange on U.S. Highway 101 will involve the widening of Westhaven Drive – the entire length of Westhaven Drive. This will mean that dozens of residents along this road could lose their homes, since there is no room to widen the road without taking private property. Caltrans has already made preliminary plans. Go to the Trinidad Rancheria’s website trinidad-rancheria.org and click on “US101 PSR PDS Trinidad Access Project.” Elaine Weinreb Trinidad

A valiant attempt

I appreciated Steve Madrone’s measured response in the Union to the charges of “racism” from the Trinidad Tribal Government. I think most people will support a still large 2- to 3-story casino complex with fewer hotel rooms that would use much less of the limited water supplies. It was a valiant attempt by Tribal Chairman Garth Sundberg to play the race card. Unfortunately for him, his target has a long record of supporting what would be a still large 2- to 3-story complex that uses less of the problematic water supply, and a decidedly longer record of being anything but prejudiced against any minority. I understand Mr. Sundberg’s animus for the able Supervisor Madrone. I wouldn’t be happy with the guy who unseated a family member in an election either. Characterizing the good citizens of Trinidad as “white invaders” and implying they’re opposition to an overly large development, but willing to compromise on something smaller, equates to “genocide” and “discrimination” is baseless. By the way, is this the same Mr. Sundberg that sent out a letter May 22 to casino employees stating they would not be increasing pay as Bear River Casino had done to make up for lost wages due to COVID-19 restrictions? Actually that was Mr. Sundberg’s casino general manager nephew. No worries, that’s another subject. Every capitalist is entitled to healthy profits and as large a project as can be approved, regardless of resources to support it. Best regards, John Dillon Eureka

Pro-American options

The Northern California town of Fort Bragg is in desperate need of a name change ASAP! No self-respecting Californian could ever possibly justify or countenance any town or city in the Golden State being named after Confederate General Braxton Bragg, who was not only a traitor and a slaveowner, but an especially intemperate and incompetent military commander as well. That name is nothing to brag about, Fort Bragg. Why would any patriotic American want to set foot in a town named after a racist traitor to the republic, like Braxton Bragg? Too bad, Fort Bragg, but you’re not getting another dime from me until you change your town’s name! Here are some non-Confederate, pro-American options for you. Feel free to choose any one of these as your town’s new name: Fort Lincoln, Fort Grant, Fort Sherman, Fort Roosevelt, Fort Eisenhower, Fort Patton, Fort Marshall, Fort Bradley, Fort Kennedy, Fort Powell. Sincerely, Jake Pickering Arcata

A balancing act

President Trump is vowing to veto this year’s proposed defense bill if it includes any amendment that would require the Pentagon to officially rename military bases associated with Confederate generals. Perhaps, as an act of appeasement to get Trump to reconsider, Congress could also include an amendment which would, at least for the remainder of his term, appropriately rename the White House after him; call it “Fort Brag.” Sherman Schapiro Eureka

Nurturing beauty

Every nation, every ethnicity has the full range of human expression from glorious and sublime to monstrosity. Those who choose hate out of some deep wounding or ignorant belief system in themselves paint the whole of the Other with the broad brush of the negative minority within them, thus creating stereotypes. Can we honor and cherish the good, beautiful, creative work of all, and strive to create love of beauty, of nature and generosity in ourselves to nurture the same in those we met and interact with? That is the hope, though all of course know that the greatest challenge is not to be reactive when you are, in varying degrees, mocked and abused for the very vulnerability out of which true generosity is manifested. There are many complex stories about how all this came about; i.e. the dreadful mess we are in – have always been, actually. We dream our dreams of Shangri-La, Zio, Brigadoon, the Shire, the Blessed Isles, Rapture, Heaven, America, and think we can get to it by slaughter and the ultimate bullying invention of Sadists, a belief in Hell. I think it is quite clear by now that that approach is not viable. Ultimately we must face the fact that we live in a vast and mysterious universe, and each of us must choose how we will meet that vastness. Naomi Silvertree Arcata

Change the world for the better, starting with that walkway out front

Dear Reader: I am asking, on behalf of many pedestrians and cyclists, if you are at all able, please remove the blackberries, bikes, cars, bushes and other stuff that is moveable and controllable out of the path of travel in front of your home, business, government or municipal building, park or other place where people walk or bike. The very narrow strips of land designated for pedestrians and cyclists are often unusable and/or dangerous due to the variety of stuff in the way. Based on longitudinal anecdotal research, people of all ages and abilities will appreciate your consideration when walking or biking in front of your home or business. And, you, your family members and friends may also enjoy and appreciate the safety of an unobstructed path should you decide to stroll about town. Now, just for fun, let us discuss the functional/contextual definitions of protrusions and obstructions. Protrusions are objects such as tree limbs or blackberry bushes that stick out into the path of travel and are roughly between seven and 18 inches. Protrusions are difficult to detect by someone who is blind or low vision using a white cane because the cane basically only gives information about what is at ground level. Also, many sighted folks consciously render themselves oblivious by walking about in highly distracted states, looking at phones and other devices, or it is dark, or for whatever reason aren’t watching where they’re going. So, they too can easily smack into a bush, tree limb, guy wire or other object that protrudes into the path of travel. This often hurts, and pain, as you know, is painful. Obstructions are generally at ground level and are directly in the path of travel, cars, sandwich boards, some outdoor seating areas, phone poles, mailboxes, fire hydrants, bikes, basically anything that is directly in the path. We have an aging infrastructure in our fabulous land and in many cases, obstructions have been built directly into the middle of the path by design. Ouch. Anyway, in those cases we know they cannot be easily removed. However, if there are items you can move, trim, generally maintain, please, please do so. Thanks from many of us who walk and bike around town, and from me personally. ❖ THIS FATAL OUNCE OF LIVING

Local poets respond to COVID-19

MAD RIVER UNION

HUMBOLDT — Adrienne Veronese, one of the 40 poets in a new anthology, Behind the Mask: 40 Quarantine Poems from Humboldt County, does what the best poets do. She stuns the reader with one stanza: is this the day/ i grow the tiniest death/ within these walls/ hoping for a dirge/ to bring me out/ of this fatal ounce of living?

Her poem is titled The Ceiling Stares Back (but never answers), something many readers may have experienced in this most challenging of times.

David Holper and Anne Fricke have done a remarkable job of collecting and presenting poems into a poetry chapbook that sings in diverse voices. It's available now on several websites but will soon be in book form at local bookstores. Behind the Mask is both a work of art and a tool for healing in our community.

Holper, currently the Eureka Poet Laureate and Fricke, a writer, podcaster and organizer of poetry slams, were both writing poems on a local Facebook page, Poetry on the Edge, that Holper had created.

out the call on Poetry on the Edge. We got twice as many poems as we thought we would,” Holper said.

Only a few poems, Holper explained, were not on the topic. Holper and Fricke gave those poets a week to write or find poems that fit and most did.

“We wanted to be inclusive and get lots of different voices from the community, to give people an outlet to express their emotions,” he said. “Some voices are dark and serious and there are some poems that are hearkening back to earlier eras. In my poem, I totally tried to put in something lighter, even mildly humorous,” Holper added.

Holper has published two books of poetry and teaches at the College of the Redwoods as well as doing special projects during his tenure as poet laureate.

Fricke also was pleased with “the variety of voices.”

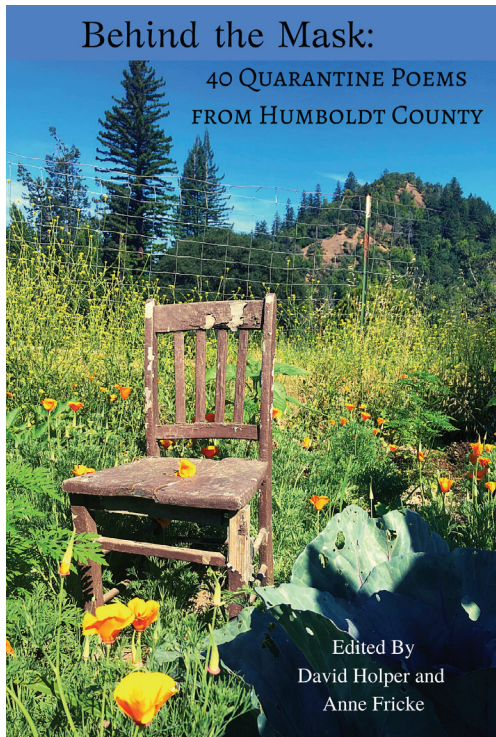

“It was great to see how many people responded and that there's just so much talent in Humboldt,” she said. It was a first time for her to be an editor of an anthology. “I got to try something new and I got to read all the submissions,” she said.

Fricke has published a novel and books of poetry. Her latest collection, out last fall, is titled One Mother's Revolution. She is also the author of There Is Joy To Be Found Here, A Journal for Parents of Children With Special Needs.

Her podcasts, Walking With Freya, provide support and insight to families and caregivers of children with special needs.

Fricke's oldest child, Haven Fricke-Smyth, took the cover photograph. “Haven will be sixteen in a few weeks,” Fricke said. “She's the artist of the family.”

Holper credited Fricke for her work on the anthology.

IN BOOKSTORES SOON This chapbook of local poetry will soon be published on paper.

“Anne started posting a Quarantine series, numbered one, two, and so on. I started writing poems about the pandemic too. With the two of us doing it, more poets started writing them as well. HSU announced their archive project about the pandemic and Anne said, ‘Let's do a chapbook,’ so we put Larry Crist, Dylan Collins, Therese Fitzmaurice, Anne Fricke, Kristy Hellum, and Neil Tarpey. The poems of Dawn Tisdell and Adrienne Veronese just flat out made me cry.

Sometimes the words that are left out are even more powerful. Larry Crist writes in An Introvert Laments: I long for the crowd i once abhorred./ would avoid like the ...

Not every poem hit the ball out of the park but that's often the nature of an anthology. Two poems in particular were good examples of that annoying habit poems sometimes have: they just don't want to end or settle as the writer would like. Good writing up until the end where it felt as if the poet were reaching for the ribbon to tie it up, all neatly, but missed. But that happens. And out of forty, that's a pretty great RBI average.

Readers can access Behind The Mask at annefricke.com, davidholper.com, the Facebook site Poetry on the Edge or on the poet laureate page on the Ink People's website, inkpeople.org/eureka-poets. Very soon, look for the paper copy at local bookstores.

The Humboldt State University Library COVID-19 archive project is actively seeking local responses in the forms of diaries, photographs, flyers, videos, artwork, and you-name-it. For more information contact Carly Marino, librarian at carly.marino@humboldt.edu. A copy of “Behind The Mask” is already included in that project.

Other poets in the anthology include (again alphabetical order) Robert Allen, Greg Bee, Michael Bickford, Stephanie Bigham, Laurie Birdsong, Susan Bloch-Welliver, Sarah Brooks, Wendy Butler, Daryl Ngee Chinn, Lsara Firefox Allen, James Floss, Mariana Franco, Susanna Gallisdorfer, Margot Genger, Susanna Gibson, Katy Gurin, Karen Harris, Ian Jewett, Deborah Kearns, David Holper, Jason Marak, Jerry Martien, Pat McCutcheon, Harvey Mitchell, Katherine Nunes-Siciliani, Vincent Peloso, Will Schmit, Joe Shermis, Izzy Unsinger, Jake Williams, Amantha Wood, and Zev Levinson.

Janine Volkmar taught creative writing at HSU and CR in the dawn of time. She once won a year-long stacks pass to the University of California/Berkeley library as well as a monetary award for a poem. The pass was the best!

“This collection would not have come together without Anne's skills, especially the layout and graphic design. I'm so grateful that we could do the project together,” he said.

The poets represented in the anthology are residents from Trinidad to Garberville with most based in the Arcata/Eureka area. Many were regulars at the poetry slams held in those cities. They are not letting the shutdown close out their creativity. Just visit the Facebook page or download the anthology to see what the buzz is about.

There are some great poems represented here.

“One poem hit me so hard that it gave me that hard cry I needed,” Fricke said.

The list includes many of the usual suspects, as that old poet, John Ross, would say. But some voices stand out in their unique style. This writer especially liked the work of (alphabetical order)

Robyn Gerstenslager, public affairs specialist with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, wrote that the North Coast Chapter of the Seabird Protection Network is currently seeking volunteers to collect data that identifies existing or potential disturbances to nesting seabirds like gulls, cormorants and murre.

She reminds us that the Trinidad area is the third most important seabird nesting area in California behind Castle Rock and the Farallones.

The North Coast Chapter, which partners with California Coastal National Monument participants including the Trinidad Coastal Land Trust, Audubon Society, Trinidad Rancheria, Trinidad Museum, Yurok Tribe, Humboldt State University Marine Laboratory, the City of Trinidad and others, was established in 2016 using funding secured by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service that is designed to repair or restore habitat damaged during two oil spills in the Humboldt Bay in 1997 and 1999.

Summer camp in Blue Lake

As we move through a summer like no other, we all look for what we would now consider safe activities.

It is absolutely glorious to go to a local restaurant for sit down/dine-in service – and then we hear of more positive cases of this virus.

Each week I hope to give ideas of things I find out that is going on that will hopefully provide each of us a little fun and safety this summer.

The Blue Lake Summer Camp is off and running and while space is limited, there is still room to sign up.

Check out the city's website at bluelake.ca.gov/parks-recreation/camps/ for information on what is being provided, registration information, and how children will be safe while they participate in a myriad of low- and no-contact activities, like skating, pickleball/tennis, hockey, crafts and more.

The Humboldt County Library is open for curbside service and has a special treat for children this summer too!

The Summer Reading Club is expanding with the offer of free craft activity kits, complete with reading logs and basic supplies (crayons, glue sticks, scissors, etc). Call (707) 668-4207 during their curbside service hours (Wednesday and Saturday 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.) to pick one up or to return your reading log for a prize!

Thank you Humboldt County Library System for keeping our kids actively reading and creating throughout the summer.

Early Notice and Public Review of Proposed Activities in 100-Year Floodplain and Mapped Wetland Area To: All interested Agencies, Groups, and Individuals:

This is to give notice that the City of Arcata, under Part 58 of Title 24 Code of Federal Regulation, has determined that the following proposed action under the Community Development Block Grant Program and contract number 17-CDBG-12017 is located in the 100-year floodplain and may permanently impact an identified freshwater emergent wetland. The City of Arcata is required to identify and evaluate practicable alternatives to locating the action in the 100-year floodplain and wetland, and the potential impacts on the floodplain and wetland from the proposed action, as required by Executive Orders 11988 and 11990, in accordance with HUD regulations at 24 CFR 55.20 Subpart C Procedures for Making Determinations on Floodplain Management and Protection of Wetlands.

The proposed project will upgrade elements of the existing Arcata Wastewater Treatment Facility located at 601 G Street in Arcata, Humboldt County. Arcata's Wastewater Treatment Facility (Facility) is located within the Arcata Marsh and Wildlife Sanctuary, and utilizes innovative treatment methods using treatment ponds within the marsh area. The City of Arcata is proposing to replace a portion of existing Facility infrastructure and upgrade several components as part of the Arcata Wastewater Treatment Facility Improvement Project. The work will include installation of buried pipe for the flow reconfiguration of disinfected enhancement wetlands effluent, installing a discharge pipe into a constructed brackish marsh at the north end of the Arcata Bay section of Humboldt Bay (future outfall discharge point), relocation of the electrical equipment building in the Facility to allow for improved road access for fire and emergency services (requiring installation of a new utility service line), and constructing a mitigation wetland area.

A major project objective is to minimize disinfection byproducts associated with the use of chlorine and health hazards associated with the use and storage of large chlorine cylinders onsite. The City of Arcata has received a Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) to purchase Ultraviolet (UV) equipment to treat wastewater in place of chlorine in order to comply with the National Pollution Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) requirements for treated effluent. This funding has triggered the examination of alternatives.

The Facility is located in the "AE" zone, which has an annual 1% probability of flooding. The project scope includes the installation of a new discharge pipe for treated effluent into an existing brackish marsh created for the purposes of treating wastewater. The perimeter of the brackish marsh has been identified as containing 0.1 acres of freshwater emergent wetland which may be permanently impacted by the project (Stillwater Sciences, 2020). This wetland area is subject to Section 404 of the Clean Water Act and thus under USACE-jurisdiction as well as State- and LCP-jurisdiction.

The entire Facility is currently protected by a newly repaired (2009 FEMA funded) rock armored levee (approx. 1.0 mile) constructed of native derived soils of elevation range 10.5' to 14' NGVD borrowed immediately from the bay side of the ringed facility. The existing armored western facing dike adjacent to any VE zone will be raised to 14' min. on top of the dike at a 1.5 to 1 max slope with an armored engineered fill soil prism to protect the dike and inner Facility from erosive storm driven wave action (4500LF) and also an interior non armored crown dike encircling the Facility core area (1775LF). The remaining portions of dike (2200LF) will be raised to 12' min. for remaining dike areas along south-east and east sides of the Facility on the dike to meet the zone AE (BFE 10' NGVD 88) requirements plus 2' Safety factor.

The core Facility (6.5 acres) is equipped with a stormwater collection and pumping system. The system will be sized to accommodate the 100-year return event within the core Facility and will be pumped into the to the City's Facility for treatment prior to discharge with the plant effluent.

There are three primary purposes for this notice. First, people who may be affected by activities in floodplains and wetlands and those who have an interest in the protection of the natural environment should be given an opportunity to express their concerns and provide information about these areas. Commenters are encouraged to offer alternative sites outside of the floodplain or wetland, alternative methods to serve the same project purpose, and methods to minimize and mitigate impacts. Second, an adequate public notice program can be an important public educational tool. The dissemination of information and requests for public comment about floodplains and wetlands can facilitate and enhance Federal efforts to reduce the risks and impacts associated with the occupancy and modification of these special areas. Third, as a matter of fairness, when the Federal government determines it will participate in actions taking place in floodplains and wetlands, it must inform those who may be put at greater or continued risk.

Comments must be received by the City of Arcata, either in writing or by email, at the following address on or before Friday July 24, 2020: 736 "F" Street, Arcata CA 95521, phone number (707) 822-5955, Attention: David Loya, Community Development Director. Comments may also be submitted via email at comdev@cityofarcata.org. More information on the project may also be reviewed at https://www.cityofarcata.org/856/Wastewater-Treatment-Facilities-Improvement/7/8
